2009

Hello to all Nairn Drama Club Members!

This will be the last Newsletter from me, as Bryce MacKintosh has very cleverly (I think) started a new website for the club, and all news of recent, current and forthcoming events will be posted on it. The web address is: www.nairndrama.org.uk and you are able to e-mail your comments and enquiries to it.

I have an important message from Avril Majewski:

Can you help please?

Between Saturday 6th and Saturday 13th June there are a large number of bookings at the Little Theatre as part of Nairn Book and Arts Week. We need at least one person in attendance throughout each event to keep an eye on things and possibly sell teas and coffees.

If all drama club members would be willing to help with at least one event it would be greatly appreciated. There is a rota in the theatre foyer, so please sign up if you can help.

Also, don't forget Front of House (and taking down and setting up of the set) help is needed for 'Last of the Red Hot Lovers' (12th, 13th, 19th and 20th June). Again, a rota is up in the theatre foyer.

Thank you,

Avril

I have been witnessing some of the rehearsals and set-building of 'Last of the Red Hot Lovers' and it looks to be a very funny and well-produced piece of comic drama. So do get to see it, and spread the word around your friends, family and neighbours; I've a feeling it may well sell out early.

I am continuing to act as membership secretary, so please direct any membership enquiries to me. However, membership fees (£15 adult, £7 junior, £20 family) continue to be payable to our treasure, Sandra McGowan (tel 01667 455899).

Signing out,

Helen Wright
